Objective:

1. To provide students with an understanding of commodity markets and their importance in the financial system.
2. To familiarize students with major commodity categories, market participants and basic market mechanisms.
3. To understand the factors influencing commodity prices, price fluctuations and market volatility.
4. To create awareness about opportunities, risks and responsible decision-making in commodity markets.

About the Program:

The Department of Management Studies (MBA), SITRC organized an informative and interactive session on “Commodity Market Awareness” for MBA students. The session was conducted on 29th September 2026 and was delivered by Ms. Anuya S. Deshpande, MBA (Finance) – Finance Professional & Academician.

The session was designed to give students practical exposure to the functioning and relevance of commodity markets. The resource person explained the role of commodities in the financial ecosystem and connected market concepts with real-world business and financial decision-making.

The discussion covered the nature of commodity markets, major commodity categories, market participants, price discovery and the factors responsible for changes in commodity prices. Students were also made aware of the importance of understanding market conditions and risks before participating in commodity-related transactions.

The session was highly interactive, with students participating in discussions and asking questions related to commodity trading, market movements, risk awareness and career opportunities in the finance domain. The interaction helped students relate their academic learning to practical financial market situations.

Key Areas Covered:

- Introduction to commodity markets and their significance.
- Major categories of commodities and their business relevance.
- Basic functioning of commodity exchanges and market participants.
- Demand, supply and other factors influencing commodity prices.
- Price discovery and commodity price fluctuations.
- Market volatility and the importance of risk awareness.
- Practical relevance of commodity markets in business and finance.
- Career awareness and learning opportunities in the financial services sector.

Outcome:

1. Students gained practical awareness of the commodity market and its role in the financial system.
2. Participants developed a basic understanding of commodity categories, market functioning and price movements.
3. Students understood the importance of demand, supply, market conditions and risk factors in commodity pricing.
4. The session enhanced students' awareness of responsible financial decision-making and career opportunities in the finance domain.
